CURVY SEWER COGNAC

What a host of historic binges are associated with this noble French Cognac! It is THE BRANDY of NAPOLEON.

For centuries, famous french generals and statesmen have enjoyed Curvysewer for it's pour la gloire flavor, and it's pour la glow kick.

The Brandy
of Napoleon

From the famous Curvysewer collection of Napoleon paintings (Musee De Versailles)

Napoleon and staff sizing up the situation in anticipation of a slight skirmish, 1815.

Dear Cornballs:

Whatsa matter with you guys? Don't you know the Twist is OUT? The real swingers are doing the Mashed Potatoes and the Hully Gully.

Frank Coleman
Clinton, Mass.

Don't ruin a good deal for us, pal. The Peppermint Lounge—which is just a few hoe-handles down the street from us—is giving us free lunches for our article on the Twist. Yesterday, for example, we had broiled steak, salad, and mashed—er, twisted potatoes.

Dear Editor:

Your "Push for Service" Button has gone over like a champ at this Moroccan Air Base. There are quite a few people on base with a very short finger on one hand because this phony button is on a brick wall. Ouch!

Send for Cracked Back Issue No. 24 and get the button Airman Smith is raving about. Your mom will LOVE it! Our future issues will include a lot more hilarious back covers. Watch for them.

Dear Editor:

Just wanted to tell you that I am a real Cracked fan—have the complete collection of past issues plus the 3 Cracked pocketbooks. How about giving your fans an Annual? Also would like to know when you are going to release your next pocket-sized edition?

Jack Keenan
Short Hills, N. J.

Thanks for your loyal support, Jack. We are hoping to have another pocket-sized Cracked anthology ready for you next Spring.

Dear Sylvester P. Smythe:

Why don't those bigshot CLOUDS give you a promotion?

Dear CLOD:

I think that you are stupid, cracked, and illiterate. Now I double-dog dare you to print that!

Peter Scott

What's with this CLOD bit???? Webster defines a clod as a lump of earth. Idiots we may be. Cracked we definitely are. But CLOUDS? Never!!!!

Dear Screwballs:

I got a big charge out of the footnotes in your last issue. They're something new with Cracked, aren't they? Keep them coming.

Eddy Braun

The footnotes ARE new, Ed. We intend to include them from now on—may even add a few original footprints from our barefooted staff of slob.

First it was THE HOOLA HOOP!

TRADING STAMPS

For as DINAH SORE says:

SEVERIN

The family that pastes together, gets STUCK—together!

Psst, Dinah! You got the wrong book!

Let us examine some of the reasons for the rapid growth of this strange phenomenon—

HISTORY OF THE TRADING STAMP

Once upon a time . . .

The grocer was unhappy because he wasn't making enough profit.

The housewife was unhappy because she had to go through her husband's pockets to buy extras like a hair dryer.

The husband was unhappy because he had a wife he couldn't trust.

...BUT someone hit upon the brilliant idea of trading stamps

The grocer then sold the $20 bag of groceries & $3 worth of trading stamps for $25.

... AND suddenly EVERYBODY was happy!

The grocer was happy because he made money on each bag of groceries.

The housewife was happy because she had a brand new hair dryer for "nothing."

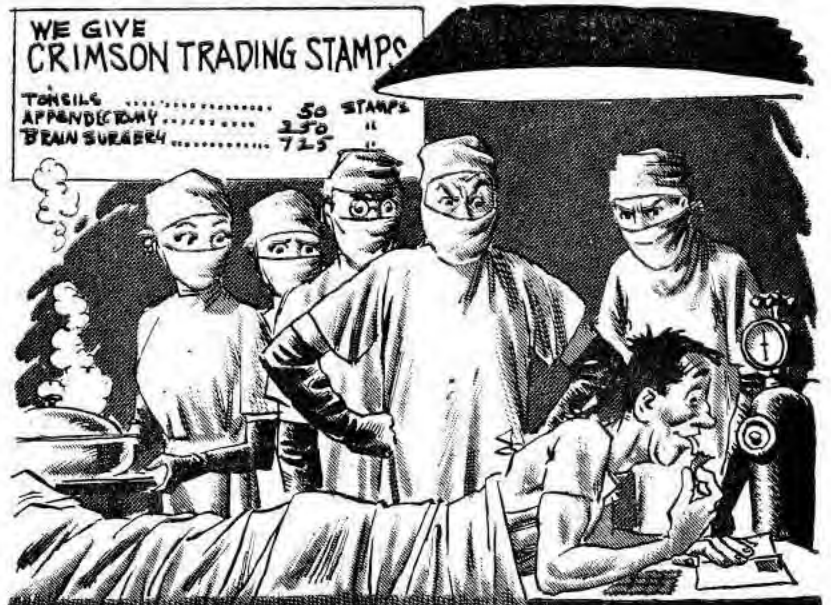

And the husband was happy because he now had a wife he could trust!

ANTE BELLUM—My Mother's sister's story

AVAILABILITY OF TRADING STAMPS

More and more enterprises are jumping on the band wagon and making trading stamps available. As CRACKED sees it eventually almost everybody will be offering trading stamps.

FANTASTIC GIFTS

Of course, what really makes stamp collecting so worthwhile is the huge selection of gifts available. One company has offered a trip to Hawaii for 105 books. Not to be outdone, another company has countered with an offer of all of Hawaii for 105,000,000,000 books.

To better show you what we mean here is a typical page from a typical stamp trading catalogue:

Unfortunately, where valuables are present so are criminals. There already have been a number of thefts involving trading stamps, and organized crime can be expected to make even further inroads upon the lucrative stamp business.

With the stamp idea proving so successful it won't be long before various governments also get in on the act—

OFFICIAL U.S. GOVERNMENT CATALOGUE FOR RED-WHITE AND BLUE TRADING STAMPS

President Kennedy says: "Your country is so smart to save the world's most valuable stamps."

U.S.A. RED-WHITE AND BLUE STAMPS

Eventually stamps will become so valuable they will replace money as the medium of exchange.

... And one day someone will hit upon a brilliant idea—

Now that Sinatra and Gang have had such a ball remaking Gunga Din into Soldier's Three, we can look for the Clan to redo just about every major screen classic in their own inimitable style. Here then is CRACKED'S conception of future ...

CLAN CLINKERS

BEAU GESTE

THE CLAN IN DAWN PATROL

Lieutenants Martin and Davis reporting for duty, sir!

Welcome to the 13th Pursuit Squadron, men!

MY BEST TO YOU

I'm short-handed, so I'm going to have to send one of you out on the Dawn Patrol, immediately!

Yes sir!

Major, you can't do it!

It's not fair sending these GREEN kids on the Dawn Patrol!

Green? You got your colors mixed up, Frankie boy!

Who can I send? You just came off a mission.

Well, I'm volunteering again!

SNAP! KLIK!

Alright, have it your way!

By the way, Major, what part of enemy territory does the Dawn Patrol fly over?

The Dawn Patrol doesn't fly over enemy territory.

... it takes the mail back to Paris!

THE CLAN IN THE THREE MUSKETEERS

THE CLAN IN DRACULA

The sun is at last setting.

... it's time to arouse Count Dracula and his Bat Pack!

Oh, how I hate to see that evening sun go down.

RISE AND SHINE

Let's go, gang! It's time to chew the fat with the local maidens!

Boss, look at that bevy of red-blooded Americans!

I'm going after pretty Shirley!

And I'll take sexy Kim!

I got lovely Liz!

Who have you got, Count Dino?

BLOODY MARY! (HIC!)

THE CLAN IN TARZAN OF THE APES

Tarzan refuse to show white hunters where elephant graveyard is located!

There's a million dollars in ivory tusks waiting for us if we can get Tarzan to show us the place.

Tarzan, we'll cut you in on the loot!

Tarzan no tell, even if you offer him Dual Ghia sports car.

Yeah, we'll even get you a snazzy sports car!

HIM NOT REALLY TARZAN...

Bwana!

What is it, Samigoomba?

I know how we can get Tarzan to show us elephant graveyard!

You do?!

Psst! Bzz! Bzzzz!

Hmm!

ME!

YOU WANNA KNOW WHO REALLY TARZAN?

Tarzan, I have special present for you if you show us elephant graveyard.

What kind special present?

TARZAN SHOW!!
TARZAN SHOW!!

THAT STUFF NOT SO HOT... WHAT YOU HEAR FROM JACK ARMSTRONG LATELY?

Everyone knows that the chief users of phones today are the under-20 set. It is for this age group that the phone companies should gear their products and advertising. To show you what we mean here are our tips for . . .

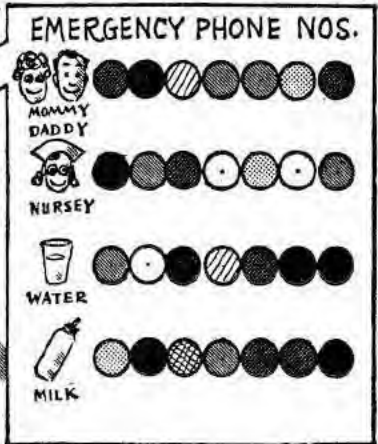

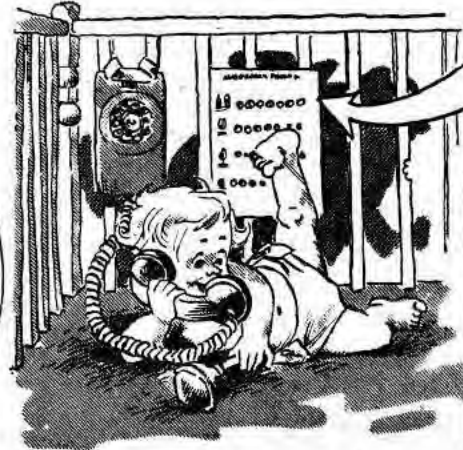

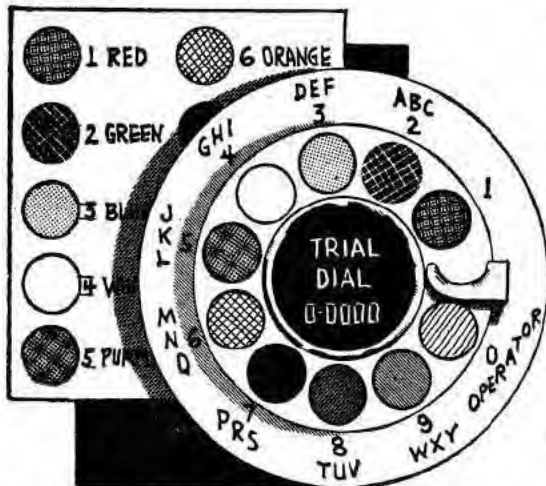

PHONE SERVICES FOR TOTS and TEENS

Gee, Gladys! Isn't this new toe dialing system just peachy?!

Phone companies can strike a veritable bonanza by offering the following services to the under 20 set.

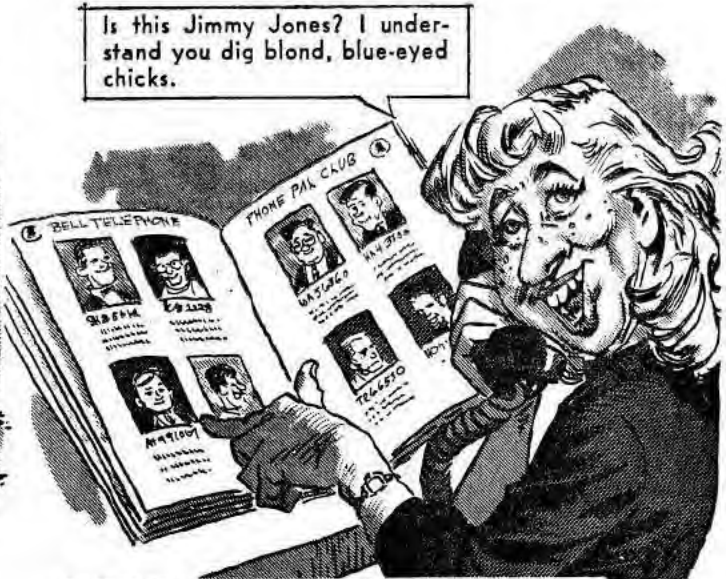

COLOR DIAL SETS for kids who are too young to distinguish numbers.

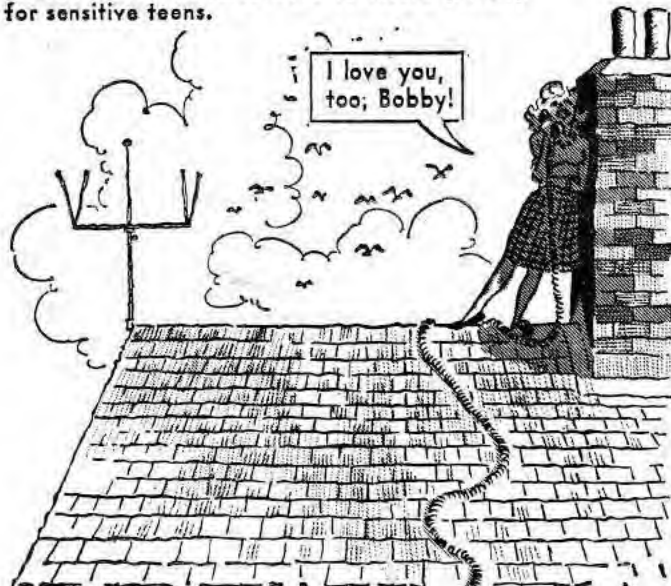

POCKETBOOK PHONES to take care of every emergency.

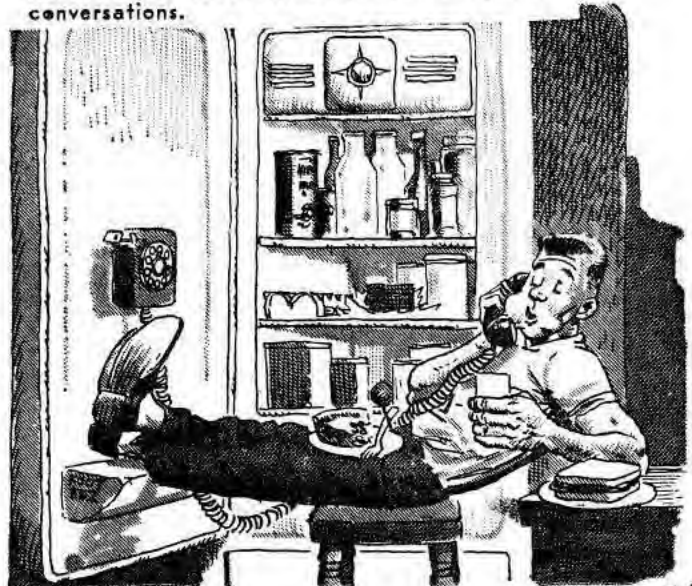

PHONE PAL CLUBS to supplement pen pal clubs

EXTRA LONG EXTENSIONS to insure privacy for sensitive teens.

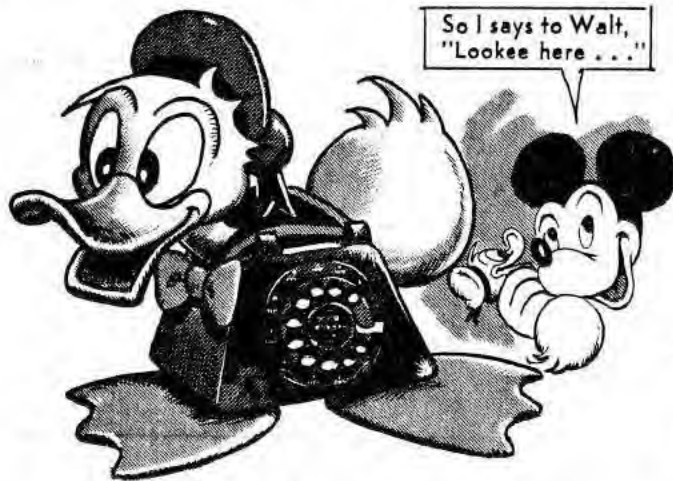

REFRIGERATOR PHONES for marathon phone conversations.

Phone companies would do well to design phones with special appeal for the younger set.

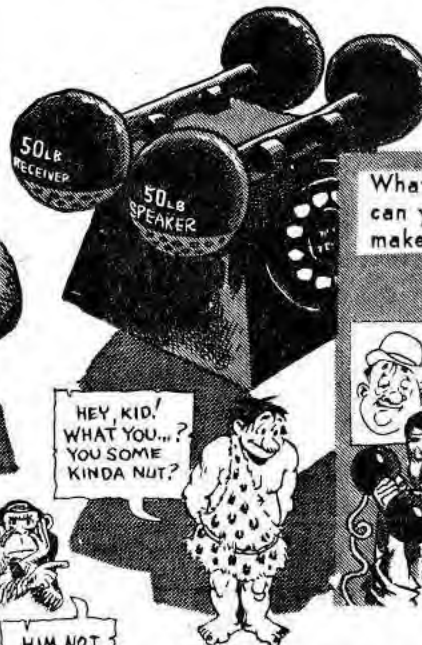

DONALD DUCK PHONE FOR SUB-TEENERS

WESTERN FAN PHONE

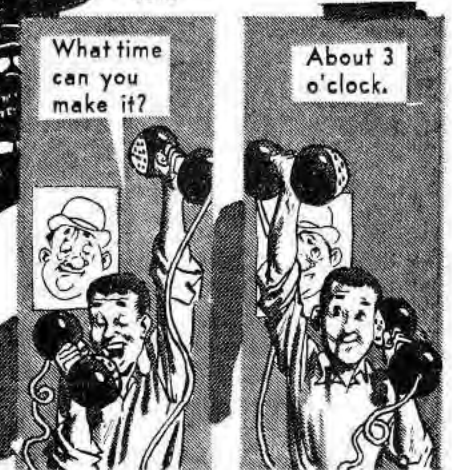

MONSTER FAN PHONE

HEALTH FADDIST PHONE

Phone permits owner to get in plenty of exercise during call.

MEDIC FAN PHONE

ELIOT NESS-TYPE PHONE

Phone comes equipped with straw hat and double-breasted suit. Over 500,000 of these phones available (all slightly used.)

In their advertising, phone companies should encourage youngsters to use the phone more often (not that they really need such encouragement) by offering under-the-table rates to kids who run up the biggest phone bills.

Teen-agers! . . . Be the first in your neighborhood to play this exciting new game.

TELEPHONE ROULETTE

As you probably know, the new, long distance code system permits you to call almost anywhere on the globe. So we at the Ball Telephone System office thought of a kookie new game for you kids to play. The rules are simple.

1. Blindfolded contestants take turns dialing any ten numbers on the phone.
2. The contestant who makes the most distant call wins the game.

To help you play this game

Have a ball with the Ball Telephone System

The greatest area for expanding phone service lies within the schools. It is here that youngsters spend almost half of their waking (the word is used loosely) hours. School authorities should have no objections to phones being installed at every desk, once the following advantages are pointed out:

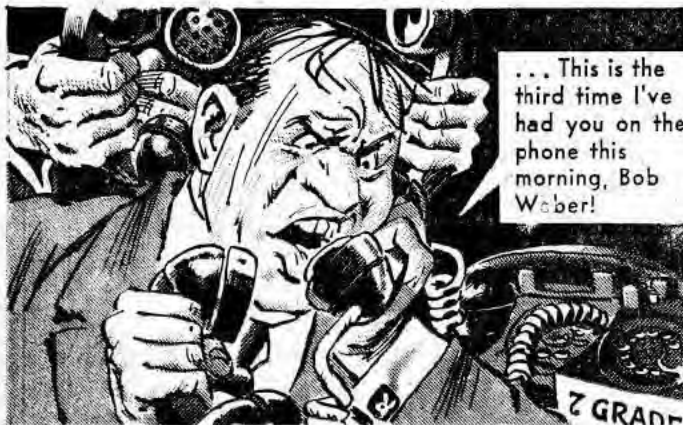

Students in the last rows of even the largest classrooms will now be able to recite with ease.

The annoying practice of passing notes will be eliminated through the use of school phones.

Unruly students can be immediately connected to the principal's office for instant disciplinary action.

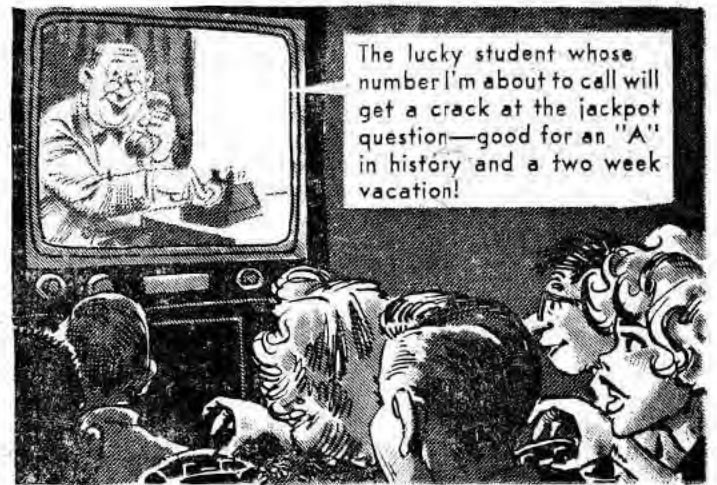

Hooky playing and malingering can be eliminated by bringing school phones right into the absent student's home.

The school phone will eliminate the evil practice of copying another student's exam ... cheating students will now be able to call home for answers.

The school phone combined with the TV classroom can make for interesting combinations.

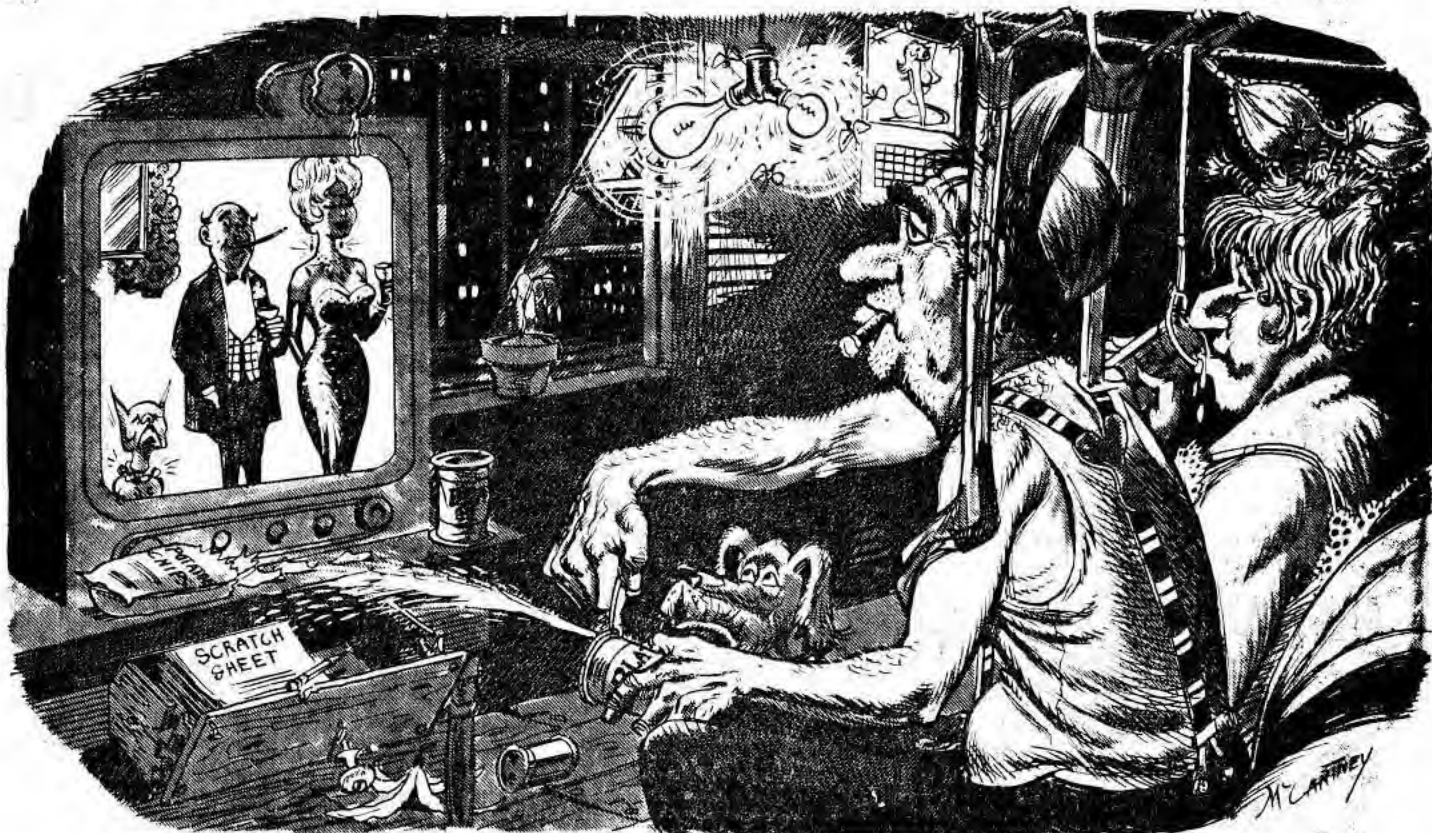

Have you noticed how the formats of today's TV programs are designed to undermine the morale of the viewing public? We sit down by our TV sets and what do we see? Perfection, constant perfection!

We see private-eyes and marshals who handle impossible situations with nonchalant ease . . .

We see bowlers bowling near-perfect games . . .

We see lawyers who never lose a case.

Most of us, however, experience difficulty with just a super market shopping list, let alone the serious problems of life. So is it any wonder then that we develop mile-high inferiority complexes from watching these Video Super Heroes.

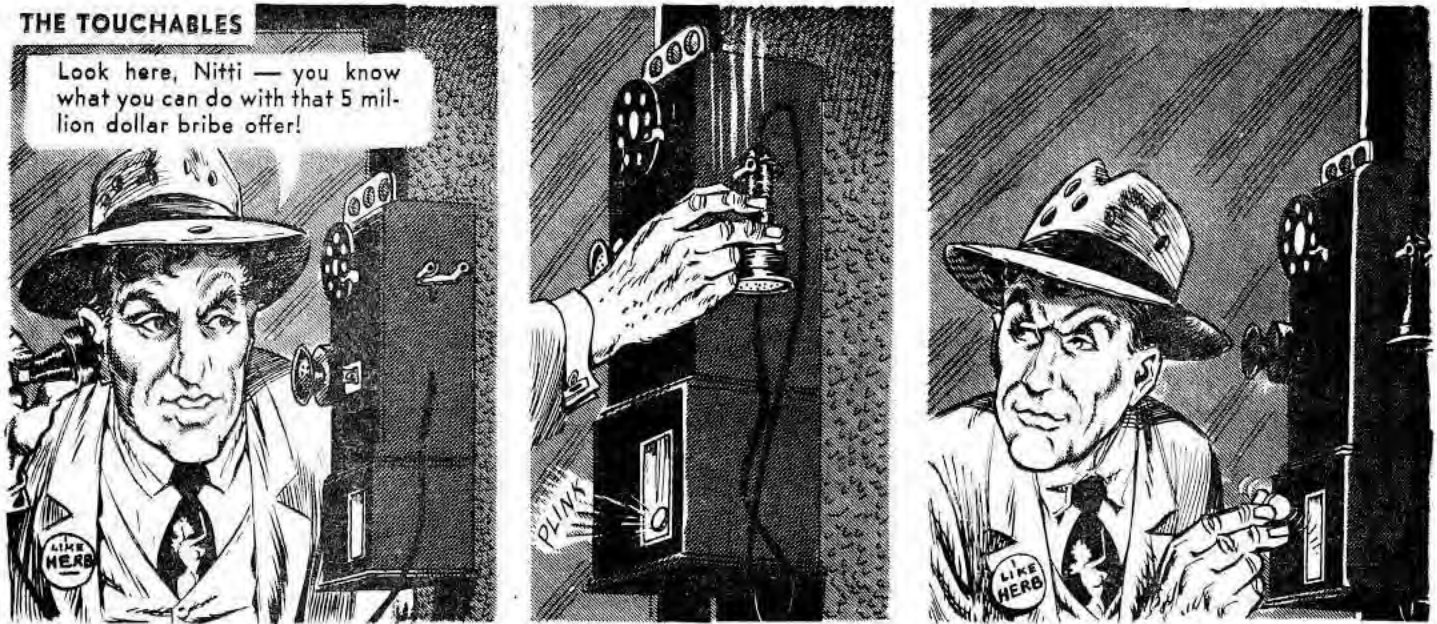

To remedy the situation CRACKED feels TV should shift to programs showing fumbling clods who are completely helpless in coping with life. In other words . . .

Confucius say, "Farsighted person should never take ancient Chinese proverb is exemplified in our story about

THE OLD THE

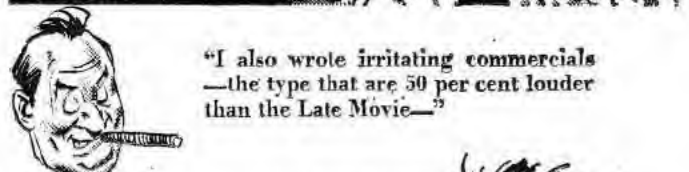

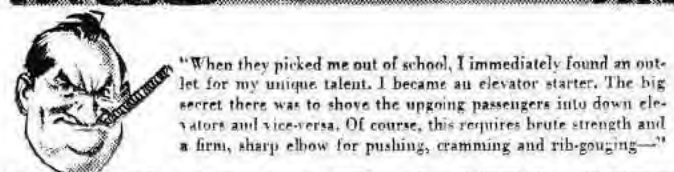

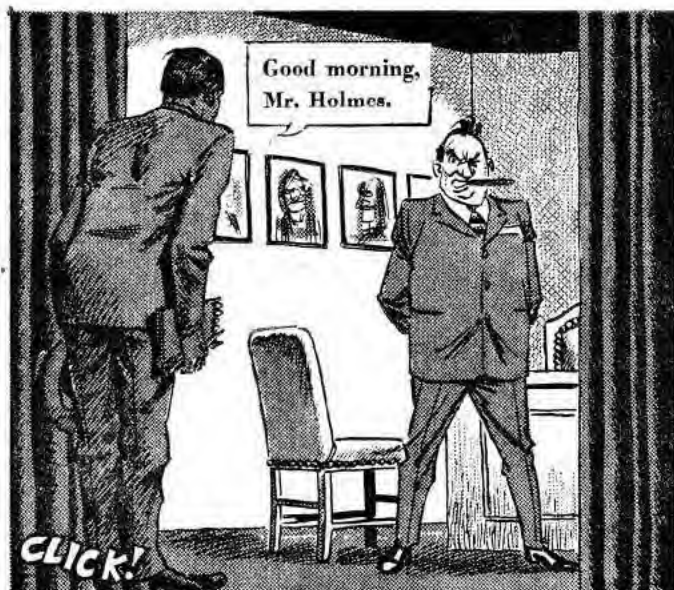

LADY AND LAUNDROMAT

In this age of togetherness, conformity and Friendship Clubs, Cracked found it refreshing to meet a man dedicated to making people hate one another. His name is I. Bombe Holmes and he is the author of the recent best-seller How to Lose Friends and Irritate People. We sent Cracked's ace reporter to interview him:

ANNOY YOUR FRIENDS

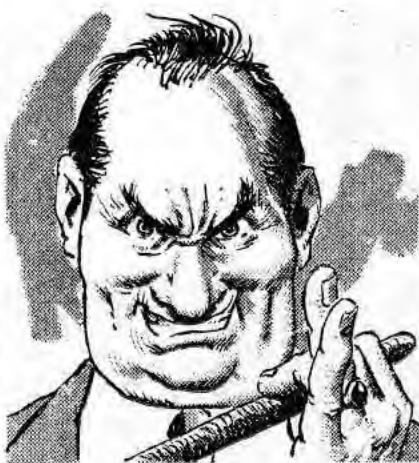

"I designed boxes that didn't tear along the dotted line—"

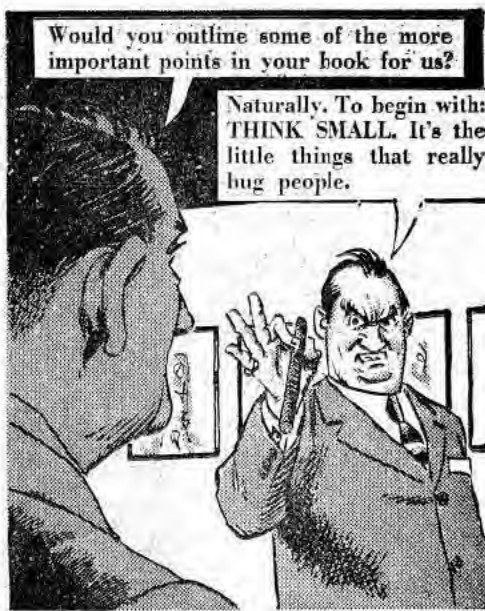

"But, of course, my talents reached their apex when I perfected my foolproof technique for irritating which I am passing along to the readers of my marvelous book How to Lose Friends and Irritate People."

Would you outline some of the more important points in your book for us?

Naturally. To begin with: THINK SMALL. It's the little things that really hug people.

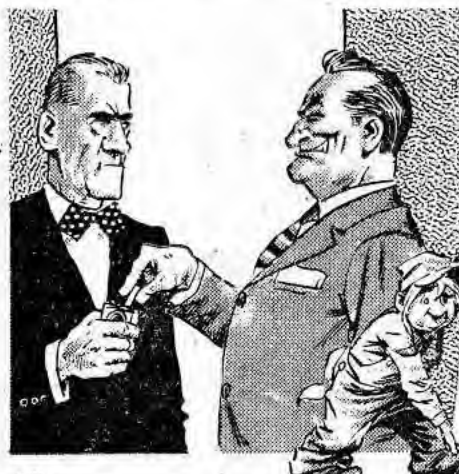

"Here are a few simple exercises you might follow:

"1. Always outfunble the other guy in reaching for the dinner check."

"2. Always mooch cigarettes while bragging that you only smoke O.P.'s (Other People's)."

"3. Tear out the funnies and the front page from the family newspaper before bringing it home."

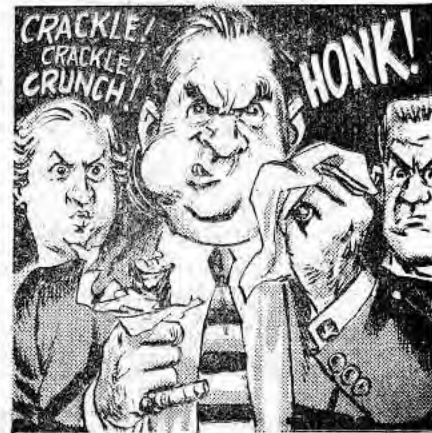

"4. Keep late TV sound high."

"5. Read over shoulders of fellow-passengers on trains and buses while whistling Love Me Tender off-key into their ears."

"6. Remember to cough loudly and/or rattle candy wrappers vigorously during the most dramatic scenes of movies or TV plays."

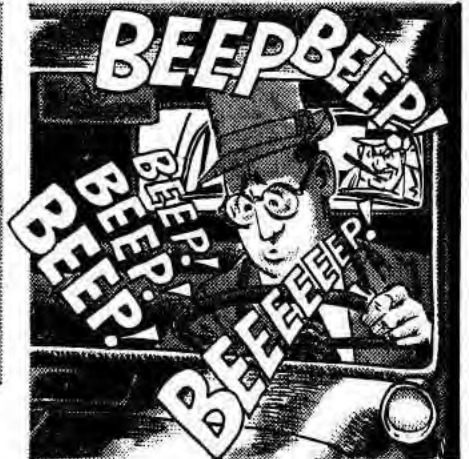

"7. Use your power mower regularly on Sunday mornings at 7:30 a.m."

"8. Walk your dog on your neighbors' lawns."

"9. Lean on your car horn when the occasion arises; i.e. intersections and when behind stalled cars."

"10. Promise her a mink coat and then give her Arpoge."

"Borrow constantly; return never."

In no time, I guarantee that you will be rid of all your cloying old friends and will have new enemies galore.

Do you really think this program will work for the average citizen — like me, for instance?

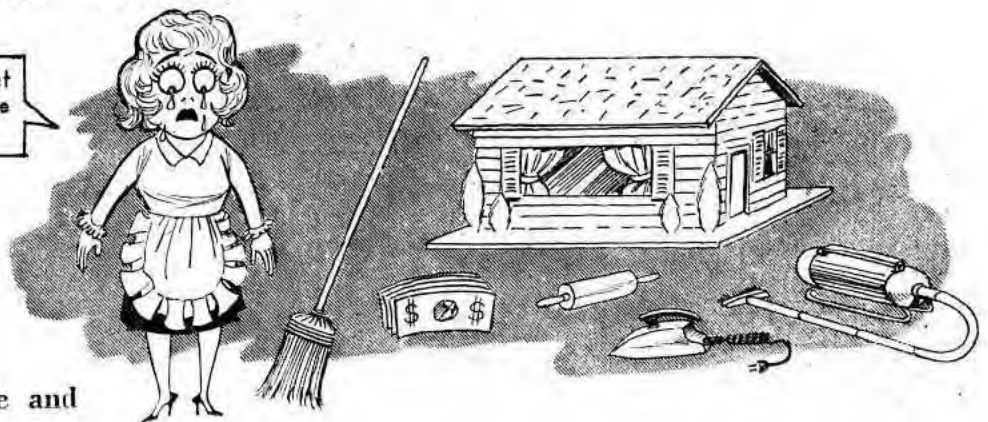

Well, now, I don't know. You really aren't the type to become a successful irritator. It's your face—it's too wholesome and friendly!

Many long years ago, back in the time of B.T. (Before Television) kids were satisfied with plain, simple dolls. But with television, kids got more and more sophisticated, and they demanded that their dolls become more and more realistic. As a result, nowadays, we have realistic dolls that cry, talk, wet, drink and get sick. Along with the realistic dolls we have realistic accessories that even include the kitchen sink.

I'm crying because I bet the rent money on the wrong nag!

Cracked predicts that this realistic trend will continue and eventually we'll be seeing dolls like the following...

Nowadays, everybody seems to be searching for their personal identity, be it with status symbols, or by way of the psychiatrist's couch. It seems to us that the medieval crowd had the right answer with their coats of arms. Here was a simple device that proclaimed to one and all who and what the owner was. With an idea to resurrecting this ancient noble practice Cracked Magazine proudly presents some . . .

a NERVE record

Whenever you leave home, carry money only you can spend: Bank of America Travelers Checks. Theft-proof, loss-proof, cashed only by your signature, you'll always find a welcome hand to accept it.

You've all seen the series of insurance ads that run along this line...

General Custer—Big little goof at Little Big Horn

Were you born in 1876 ?

Gosh, but you're an old geezer. We'd be out of our cotton pickin' minds trying to insure old fogies like yourself, but we sure would appreciate it if you told your grandchildren about Old England Life's cash value insurance.

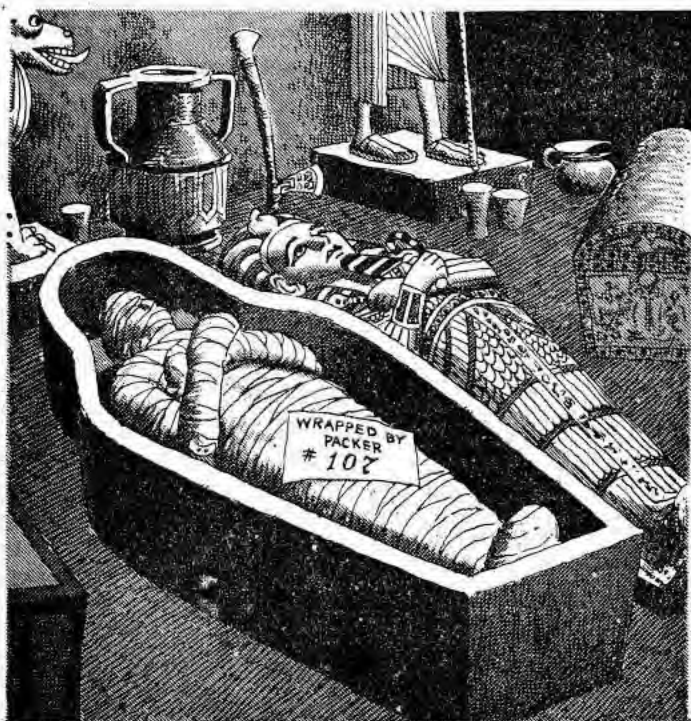

While you're at it, point out to them how disaster can strike suddenly and unexpectedly—after all, look at what happened to that cuss, Custer

OLD ENGLAND LIFE

We at CRACKED MAGAZINE think the business of getting the reader to identify himself with the ad, because of his age, is a very clever idea, and like all clever ideas it's bound to be imitated. . . . We should know—look at all the clever ideas we've imitated.

Here is what you'll soon be seeing, as different companies attempt to use the same advertising gimmick and start a . . .

AGE RAGE AD FAD

Were you born in 2000 B.C.?

Isn't it about time you had those musty bandages of yours changed? Try our dependable line of 3 and 4 inch bandages and you'll get another 4000 years' wear out of them.

PINK CROSS MEDICAL SUPPLIES

Our products are used exclusively by the Ben Casey show

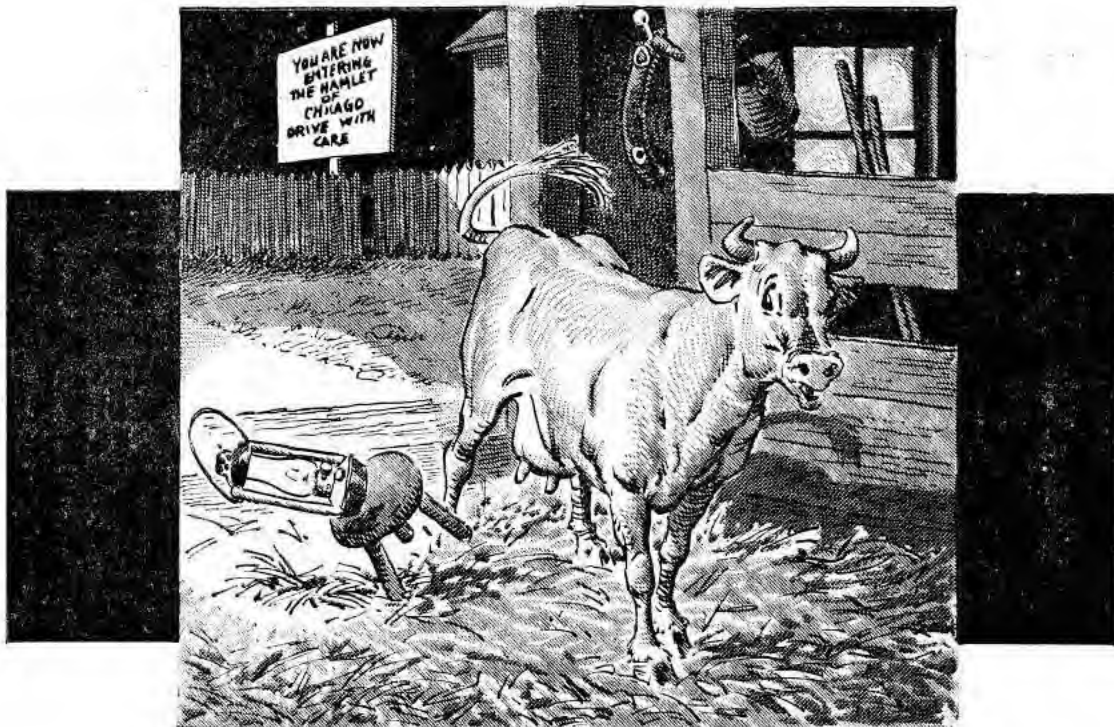

Were you born in 1862?

You've hit the century mark and congratulations are in order. But common sense should tell you you're not going to be around another 100 years. It's time you made provisions for that "certain" day. PINE ACRES CEMETERY

Your plot won't go to pot at Pine Acres

BONA FIDE—A bone for Fido

Were you born in 1871?

That was quite an expensive fire Mrs. O'Leary's cow started 91 years ago. . . . And that must be quite an expensive fire YOU start everytime you light up one of your multi-canded birthday cakes. Let us give you a reasonable rate on your quantity purchases of candles.

CANDAR CANDLE CO. We deal only with wholesalers and octogenarians

Were you born in 1897?

You're now 65, and eligible for Social Security! BIG DEAL, GRAN'PA! . . . You'll soon find out your paltry check won't feed chickens, let alone some slick young chick. However, a few hot rolls on our dice tables can run your pittance into a windfall.

VISIT VEGAS ASSOCIATION

Were you born in 1922?

LIFE BEGINS AT 40?

Try and tell that to yourself the next time you attempt the Charleston. However, a bottle of our Jerrytoll can delude your tired blood for a few happy hours.

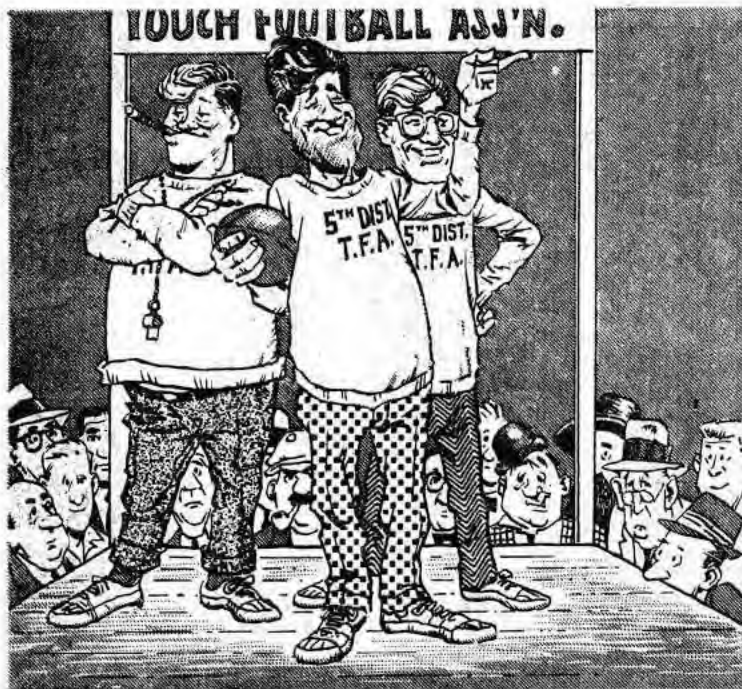

Not available in "dry" states.

Were you born in 1923?

You are now 39! And you can be 39 for the rest of your life if you'll only join my Jack Benny's Evergreen Club.

Dues—a modest $39 a year.

Were you born in 1927?

Agewise you're eligible to become president. But you don't stand a chance in the rough and tumble field of politics unless you've first been hardened in the field of sports. Train by organizing a touch football team in your election district.

Exclusive purveyor to the President

Were you born in 1929?

WHAT A HEX YOU TURNED OUT TO BE!

Isn't it time you stopped jinxing yourself and all the people around you? We guarantee you protection with one of our lucky rabbit feet.

RABID RABBIT FOOT CO.

Were you born in 1944?

You are now 18 and eligible to join the largest and most powerful organization of the United States.

You might as well join—we'll get you anyway.

Were you born in 1961?

Like all the other fools of the Twist Generation your twisted spinal column probably resembles a pretzel. For immediate relief consult a skilled representative of the . . .

UNTWIST CHIROPRACTIC ASSOCIATION

Were you born yesterday?

A fine selection of sturdy and durable bridges awaits your careful inspection. Call for an appointment with one of our shifty representatives.
